DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter, which the applicant regards as his invention.
2. Claims 23, 60 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.
3. Claims 23 and 60 are indefinite and unclear to the examiner because the claims use the term “the device” and there is no limitation in the claim that describes the device. Is the device the cannula or a separate structural element?

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

5. Claims 23-30,32,33-40,42-44,47-52,54,55,58-65,67-69, and 72-76 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Paques et al. (US Pub 2003/0171722).

Paques et al. discloses a method for treating an eye with a device comprising a piercing member (4) with an outer diameter less than 25 gage (0053) allowing the puncture location to self-seal and having a flexible plastic tube therein (0087) to administer a therapeutic substance to the eye. The device is used to treat conditions such as vascular occlusion (0039) by advancing the device transconjunctively and piercing the sclera of the eye and delivering a therapeutic agent subretinally (Figure 1, 2 and paragraph [0105]-[0113]).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 31,45,46,56,57,70,71 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Paques et al. in view of del Cerro et al (USPN 5,409,457).

Paques et al., as described above, teaches a device for subretinal delivery of a therapeutic agent wherein the device has an outer piercing member and an inner cannula, but fails to teach withdrawal of fluid from the eye.

Del Cerro et al. teaches a device comprising a tip for penetrating the subretinal region of the eye to deliver a therapeutic agent or withdraw fluid from the eye (column 4, line 31).

It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time of the invention to withdraw fluid from the eye in order to reduce the pressure in the eye, as well as to deliver therapeutic fluid to treat the disease or injury both actions possible with the syringe connected to the device of Paques.

7. Claims 41, 53, 66 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Paques et al. in view of Bowman et al. (USPN 6,378,526)

Paques et al., as described above, teaches a device for subretinal delivery of a therapeutic agent wherein the device has an outer piercing member and an inner cannula, but fails to teach the delivery of steroids.

Bowman et al., teaches a device for delivery of a therapeutic agent such as steroids, genetic material, or pharmaceuticals to the eye.

It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time of the invention to deliver agents such as steroids to the eye depending on the needs of the patient.

Response to Arguments

8. Applicant's arguments filed 8/10/04 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

9. With regards to a method of inserting a device into the eye by piercing the eye with the needle and then followed by inserting the piercing member and the cannula into the eye is taught in Paques paragraphs [0105-0113].

10. With regards to the piercing member creating self-sealing slits in the eyes, the examiner believes that the prior art is inherently capable of creating self-sealing slits, since there is no other special structure or method limitations claims that would produce a different slit, therefore the examiner determines that this prior art would create the same slits and thus from self-sealing slits.

Conclusion

11. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
